**Losing a loved one is one of the most difficult experiences we can go through.** The pain of losing someone we care about can be unbearable. We may feel lost, alone, and unsure of how to go on. In her memoir, **Crying Under the Apple Tree**, author Susannah Fullerton shares her own journey of loss, redemption, and healing after the sudden and unexpected death of her husband.

Susannah's story is a moving and inspiring one. She writes with honesty and vulnerability about the raw pain of grief, the challenges of rebuilding her life, and the unexpected moments of joy and healing that she found along the way.

Susannah's journey began on a sunny day in May, when her husband, John, was killed in a car accident. Susannah was devastated. She couldn't believe that John was gone. She felt lost and alone and didn't know how she would go on without him.

But with the love and support of her family and friends, Susannah slowly began to heal. She found comfort in writing, in spending time in nature, and in talking to other people who had experienced loss. She also found strength in her faith.

Susannah's journey was not always easy. There were times when she felt like she was taking two steps forward and one step back. But she never gave up. She kept putting one foot in front of the other, and she eventually found her way through the darkness.

Today, Susannah is a thriving widow. She has rebuilt her life and found happiness again. She is an active member of her community, and she loves spending time with her family and friends. She also enjoys her work as a writer and speaker, where she shares her story of loss and healing with others.

Crying Under the Apple Tree is a beautiful and inspiring memoir that will resonate with anyone who has ever experienced loss. Susannah's story is a reminder that even in the darkest of times, there is hope. We can heal from our losses, and we can find happiness again.

Here are some of the lessons that Susannah learned on her journey of loss, redemption, and healing:

- Grief is a journey, not a destination. There is no right or wrong way to grieve. Everyone experiences loss differently, and there is no timeline for healing.
- It's okay to ask for help. When you're grieving, it's important to reach out to others for support. There are many people who care about you and want to help you through this difficult time.
- Finding joy in the midst of grief is possible. Even when you're grieving, there are still moments of joy to be found. Take time to appreciate the small things in life, and find ways to bring joy into your days.

- Healing takes time. Don't expect to heal overnight. Healing from loss takes time, and there will be setbacks along the way. Be patient with yourself, and keep putting one foot in front of the other.
- There is hope. Even in the darkest of times, there is hope. Grief may never go away completely, but it will become less intense over time. And you will find happiness again.

If you are grieving the loss of a loved one, I encourage you to read Crying Under the Apple Tree. Susannah's story is a beacon of hope, and it will help you on your own journey of loss and healing.
