Long Shadows Memory Man is a collaborative winemaking project that brings together renowned winemakers from around the world. Each winemaker creates a unique wine using grapes from Washington state, and the results are truly extraordinary.

The project was founded in 2009 by Allen Shoup, a former Microsoft executive who had a passion for wine. Shoup's vision was to create a series of wines that would showcase the diversity of Washington state's terroir and the talents of some of the world's most respected winemakers.

To date, Long Shadows has collaborated with a total of 15 winemakers, including Michel Rolland, Randy Dunn, John Duval, and Piero Antinori. Each winemaker has brought their own unique style and expertise to the project, and the resulting wines are a testament to the power of collaboration.

The Long Shadows Memory Man wines are all made from 100% Washington state grapes. The grapes are sourced from some of the state's most prestigious vineyards, including Kiona Vineyard, Red Mountain Vineyard, and Cold Creek Vineyard.

The Long Shadows Memory Man wines are all aged in French oak barrels. The barrels are carefully selected to complement the unique flavors of each wine. The wines are aged for a minimum of 18 months, and some of the wines are aged for even longer.

The Long Shadows Memory Man wines are all limited production. Each winemaker produces only a small number of cases each year. The wines are highly sought-after by collectors and wine enthusiasts alike.

The Long Shadows Memory Man wines have received critical acclaim from around the world. The wines have been rated 90 points or higher by some of the world's most respected wine critics, including Robert Parker and James Suckling.

The Long Shadows Memory Man wines are a testament to the power of collaboration. The wines are a unique blend of art and science, and they offer a glimpse into the minds of some of the world's most talented winemakers.
